Two days will never be the same

We know it may sound cliché to say that two days will never be the same – because more often than not, it turns out not to be the case after all. However, as an inspector at Bactoforce, we can say exactly that with great confidence.

The variety of your assignments, the clients you visit, their production facilities, processes and techniques – all of them will be different and in turn present you with a fresh professional and personal challenge every day.

Take a closer look

Freedom at work and independence

Driving from your own home every day, embarking on yet another adventurous assignment, is the embodiment of your role as an inspector with Bactoforce. Every day you will experience a great sense of freedom at work and independence, as you will be primary responsible for your assignments with clients.

Rest assured that even though you work primarily on your own as an inspector at Bactoforce, you will never feel a sense of isolation – our team of highly skillful and dedicated specialists will always be there to support you.

Your responsibility is a key ingredient

You possess in-depth knowledge and key insight into production processes and production techniques. Being the expert, you appreciate the responsibility that comes with helping our clients both prevent and solve risks and defects in their processing equipment.

The work you do is hugely important and makes a real difference to our clients' businesses – every day.

Your development

For 25 years, the Bactoforce employees have been what has cemented the Bactoforce brand as a leader in our industry. Because of that, we want you to work for us based on your knowledge, your professional skills and your human characteristics.

Equally important to us, is your future development – for you to keep expanding your knowledge and refining your skills within our industry. A development we will continuously support.

We look forward to welcoming you to the Bactoforce family!
